

This is the Genealogy of Cú Chulaind

[1]

[First column:]

Cú Culaind son of Sualtam son of Dubthage son of Cubair son of Ler son of Nelruiad, that is nemthig son of Cusantin son of Adgar son of Boado son of Midgin son of Caiss son of Uacais that is mind son of Branaill son of Rethaig son of Rindall son of Rindbailc son of Sloitgen son of Rothchlaim son of Uacaise son of the son of Coll son of Cermait son of the Dagda son of Elatha son of Delbaith son of Net son of Indui son of Alloit son of Thait.

[second column:][2]

Cu Chulaind son of Sualtam son of Dubtagi son of Cubair son of Ler son of Cusantin son of Adachair son of Báetain son of Midgni son of Úachaill son of Cais Clothaig son of Cermait son of the Dagda son of Inde son of Doran son of Nomal son of Condlai son of Memnon son of Samrith son of Buithe son of Tigernas son of Follaig son of Ethriol son of Íareól Fátha son of Eremon son of Miled Espain

- Translated by Mary Jones from the digital edition of Lebor na nUidre.

-

The second column is largely in agreement with the first until the generation concerning Cermait son of the Dagda. Moreover, there is an obvious anachronism of having the Dagda come some thirteen generations after Eremon, whereas the annals and Lebor Gabala are in agreement that it was the Dagda's grandsons--Mac Cumhail, Mac Cecht and Mac Coll (the Coll of this genealogy) who lost Ireland to the sons of Mil Espain.

Revision #1

Created 27 April 2022 18:24:30 by Admin

Updated 27 April 2022 18:34:07 by Admin